Osteoporosis Leader, Professor Peter Ebeling, recognised for distinguished service to medicine

Osteoporosis Australia congratulates Professor Peter Ebeling for his Officer in the General Division of the Order of Australia announced today. Professor Peter Ebeling, Osteoporosis Australia's Medical Director, has been duly recognised for his distinguished service to medicine.

"Professor Peter Ebeling has had a long and distinguished academic and research career in the field of bone health and it's very pleasing his commitment to healthy bones for all Australians has been recognised with an Order of Australia," said Gail Morgan, CEO of Osteoporosis Australia.

"As an active member of Osteoporosis Australia's Board and as our Medical Director, I see first-hand the intelligence, commitment and knowledge that Professor Ebeling displays every day as he strives to make a difference.

"Professor Ebeling is 100% committed to ensuring all Australians with poor bone health are diagnosed, managed and treated. He champions effective fracture liaison services and hopefully 2015 will see a renewed effort to diagnose Australians with osteoporosis so they don't suffer from more and more broken bones.

"The Osteoporosis Australia Board, staff and myself congratulate Professor Peter Ebeling on this well deserved honour."
